

Taking High Quality iPhone Photos

1. In Settings > Camera, be sure Grid is turned on.

2. When taking a photo, be sure to turn your phone sideways. We can only use horizontal images on the new BH.com.
3. Use the gridlines to ensure the subject is centered both horizontally and vertically. If taking a picture of an individual or a group, it's OK if their heads are in the upper third of the grid.

4. If taking a group shot or a photo of people in motion, use Burst Mode to capture several shots in a row. Do this by holding down the shutter button for as long as you want to keep capturing shots.
5. When taking photos in low light or indoors, consider taking some with flash and some without. We can do some minor editing but cannot brighten a very dark photo.
6. When emailing photos directly from your phone, do not reduce file size. Instead, send multiple emails in order to send all photos at the original size/resolution OR consider using a free app like Google Photos or Dropbox that allows you to share the photos without emailing files.
